COL. LINDBERGH TO TOUR EUROPE AND ASIA

TRANS-OCEANIC FLIGHT TO BE MADE IN 4 HOPS

AVIATOR IS EXPECTED TO FOLLOW FAR NORTHERN ROUTE

TO LEAVE ST. JOHN'S, NEW-FOUNDLAND, EARLY IN JUNE

Washington, May 1.—(UP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has completed his plans for a flight across the Atlantic and an aerial tour of Europe and probably Asia this summer. It became known here today. The trans-oceanic flight will be made in four hops and will follow a far northern route. The hop-off from the North American continent will probably be made from St. John's, Newfoundland early in June.

Lindbergh's plans for a European trip were first announced by the United Press on March 30.

The flight will be made in a Ford tri-motored, all-metal airplane. Lindbergh will be accompanied by Major Thomas G. Lanphier, commanding officer of the first pursuit squadron of the army air corps although, according to information available here, this has not been decided finally.

Formal announcement of the flight may await the return to this country of Henry Ford who is in Europe. The Ford offices in Detroit have, however, already intimated that plans for the flight have been completed and an itinerary decided upon.

According to these plans, Lindbergh will stop in Greenland, Iceland and at Croydon, England, before starting on his tour of Europe. The airman spent several months gathering information concerning flying conditions and landing fields in Greenland and Iceland. Recently it was learned he was assured by the Danish government that landing space was available in Greenland and that arrangements to accommodate his ship could be made in Iceland.

Lindbergh and the Ford Company have had help from many sources in the United States and from several European governments in drawing up their plans. A comprehensive survey of the entire North Atlantic region was made at their request. This survey was completed early last week and a report was given to Lindbergh.

The colonel and Major Lanphier expect to visit every capital and important city in Europe and may go on to Asia by way of India or Russia. Arrangements were made some time ago for a trip to Japan and it is understood that this part of the program has not been changed.

Whether Lindbergh will come back from his tour by steamer or by airplane could not be determined here. It is unlikely, however, that he will attempt a trans-Pacific flight as first reported. His friends have urged him to abandon this dangerous part of the journey.

Several official invitations from European governments are awaiting the colonel. The Swedish legation already has sent him an invitation from the Royal Aero Club of Sweden asking him to visit the land of his forefathers on his trip. It is understood a similar invitation is awaiting him at the Danish legation, while the British and German governments have been awaiting formal announcement of the flight before asking him to visit their countries.

Originally it was intended to ship the Ford plane to Europe by steamer, but this plan was vetoed by Lindbergh himself, according to his friends here. He agreed, it was said, that another trans-Atlantic non-stop flight would be foolhardy, but at the same time he flatly refused to give up his hope of making some sort of flight.

As a result, persons close to him here said he decided upon the Greenland-Iceland route. When they learned of this decision, his backers agreed to the compromise and have since been assisting him and the Ford Company in drawing up plans for the trip in order to ensure a maximum degree of safety for the airman and his companions.

Washington, May 1.—Colonel Charles Lindbergh told the United Press today he plans to make another trip to Europe.

Just how he will go, he said, has not been determined. Asked as to plans for an air jump via Greenland and Iceland, Lindbergh said he had been opposed to "further trans-oceanic flights unless

VON HUENEFELD CELEBRATES 36TH BIRTHDAY IN N. Y.

TRIO OF BREMEN CREW ATTEND SHARKEY-DELANEY FIGHT

ANNOUNCER, AMID CHEERS, INTRODUCES THEM TO CROWD

New York, May 1.—(UP)—Thousands of miles away from his beloved fatherland, Baron Gunther Von Huenefeld today will celebrate his thirty-sixth birthday in a city which welcomed him with open hearted enthusiasm for the courageous flight of the airplane Bremen across the north Atlantic.

The baron and his two comrades, Major James Fitzmaurice and Captain Hermann Koehl, will have a more quiet day today than yesterday. They will place a wreath on Washington's statue at the sub-treasury and later will return to the Ritz Carlton hotel where there will be a birthday party for the titled German. The hotel learned of Von Huenefeld's birthday and has baked a birthday cake for the occasion.

The three fliers, Mrs. Koehl, Mrs. Fitzmaurice and little Patsy Fitzmaurice will attend the celebration. Tonight they will be guests of honor at a municipal dinner at the Commodore hotel. Tomorrow they go to Washington.

Monday was a tumultuous day for this trio of adventurers. After the great celebration of greeting, when New York welcomed wholeheartedly the two men who were America's enemies only 10 years ago, and their Irish comrade, they had a night of excitement.

With Mayor James J. Walker they went to a musical show. Then they went to the Sharkey-Delaney fight at Madison Square Garden.

No sooner had they been seated than someone spied them and the shouting that had rung in their ears throughout the day was resumed. The 15,000 fight fans ignored the ring and shouted a glad acclaim.

Finally Joe Humphreys, the veteran Garden announcer, looked out to where the three sat and said: "Come on, Fitz."

The shouting started again as the grinning Fitzmaurice led his two German pals of the air to the ring. Fitz showed an alacrity in going through the ropes but the heavy set Koehl experienced difficulty in climbing into the ring.

"I am proud of the privilege to introduce the monarchs of the air, sons of the two greatest countries on earth," Humphreys said.

The crowd yelled and stamped its approval and kept up such a bedlam that it was almost five minutes before Humphreys could continue his speech.

3-CORNERED BATTLE ON IN CALIFORNIA

SMITH, WALSH, REED SEEK THE GOLDEN STATE DELEGATION

CALIFORNIA DEMOCRATS AND REPUBLICANS HOLDING PRIMARIES

By GERALD P. OVERTON (United Press Staff Correspondent)

San Francisco, May 1.—The three-cornered battle among Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, Senator Thos. J. Walsh of Montana and Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, for support of the California delegation at the national democratic convention will be decided today.

California democrats and republicans will hold their primaries today, and the results of the balloting will prove of paramount interest to the country over. It is considered that the primary may show the relative strength of the candidates from a national standpoint.

Although greatest interest was centered on the democratic battle, the size of the vote drawn by Herbert Hoover was also awaited with anxiety.

The secretary of commerce was unopposed by any official entrant for the republican nomination and there has not been any indications of a "write-in" campaign against him. Heartened by fair weather all over the state, Hoover's workers were confident that he would poll the largest vote ever secured by a republican presidential candidate in California.

Republicans will send 29 delegates to their convention at Kansas City while the democrats can send 30 to Houston. A fifth delegation of 28 persons who were pledged to Daniel A. Poling of the prohibition party was on the ballots but has not seemed to attract many persons.

Politicians generally predicted that approximately 1,000,000 persons would go to the polls. The total registration was 1,720,487.

Preston was chosen for the opening campaign meeting, according to Senator Rockne, because it is his boyhood home. Republican leaders of the community have united to sponsor the senator's appearance.

Lyle Hamlin, president of the Fillmore county Rockne club and L. T. Lobdill, first district member of the state-wide Rockne campaign committee, will arrange for the Preston meeting.

CHINESE CIVIL WAR CENTERING AT SHANTUNG

2 GENERALS IN DEFENSE OF PROVINCE FLEE TO TIENTSIN

POSSIBLE CAPTURE OF NORTHERN TERRITORY SEEMS IMMINENT

Shanghai, May 1.—(UP)—The combined armies of the north are crumbling before the concerted nationalist attack, it was reported from Shantung province, where the Chinese civil war has centered in recent weeks.

General Chang Chung-Chang and Sun Chuan-Fang, to whom had been entrusted the defense of the province were reported today to have fled to Tientsin, while the nationalist forces occupied the area south of the Yellow river surrounding Tsinanfu, as well as Tsinanfu itself.

The flight of Generals Chang and Sun seemed to presage the flight of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the Peking dictator, with the possible complete capture of northern territory by the nationalists under Generals Chiang Kai-Shek and Feng Yu-Hsiang.

Reports from Tsingtao said the nationalists (southerners), now occupy a considerable section of the Shantung railway east of Tsinanfu.

Chiang Kai-Shek and Feng participated in besieging Tsinanfu. British and American missionary organizations here were advised from Tsinanfu there was no danger to missionaries there. The normal missionary population of that city is approximately 200, most of them connected with Shantung Christian University. It is not known how many are there now as British and American consuls had ordered their evacuation two weeks ago.

Despite the presence of Japanese troops on both sides of the line, the southerners cut the Kiaochow-Tsinanfu railroad at Mingshui, capturing several towns, and communications between Tsinanfu and Tsingtao.

Tokio, May 1.—Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the Peking leader, may be forced to flee before the northward sweep of the nationalist forces. Reports reaching Tokio today said the Chinese nationalists, headed by General Chiang Kai-Shek and General Feng Yu-Hsiang had captured Tsinanfu.

A further advance by the nationalists, it is believed here, would make Marshal Chang's position in Peking, the northern capital, untenable.

HARRY F. SINCLAIR TELLS HIS STORY ON TEAPOT DOME

SAID HE KNEW NOTHING ABOUT MYSTERIOUS CONTINENTAL TRADING COMPANY

DID GET $757,000 OUT OF DEAL AND TURNED MONEY AND INTEREST BACK

By PAUL R. MALLON

Washington, May 1.—Harry F. Sinclair told his long withheld story to the senate Teapot Dome committee today.

He said he knew nothing about the mysterious Continental Trading Company; that he did get $757,000 out of that strange company's deal and that after his acquittal here ten days ago he turned his whole sum back to his Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company with 3 per cent interest amounting to some $142,000.

Sinclair said he put the $757,000 in Continental liberty bonds with a lot of other bonds he had and that was why they were the bonds he gave to former Secretary of Interior Fall who leased him Teapot Dome, and to Will Hays, former chairman of the republican national committee who used them to pay off part of the 1920 republican deficit.

He claimed entire innocence of the organization of the Continental Company and described his party in the deal as a mere effort to buy oil.

Thus Sinclair revealed he acted just as did the other three oil men involved in the seven year old deal. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, testified last week he got $759,500 of the profits and recently turned them back to his company, and the other two, H. M. Blackmer and James E. O'Neill, also returned their one-fourth shares.

Sinclair was sparing of words in his testimony, and once he was informed by Senator Walsh of Montana that thereafter he could not ask his attorney, Martin W. Littleton, who sat beside him, what answers he should make to questions.

CHINESE CIVIL WAR CENTERING AT SHANTUNG

2 GENERALS IN DEFENSE OF TIENTSIN

POSSIBLE CAPTURE OF NORTHERN TERRITORY SEEMS IMMINENT

Shanghai, May 1.—(UP)—The combined armies of the north are crumbling before the concerted nationalist attack. It was reported from Shantung province, where the Chinese civil war has centered in recent weeks.

General Chang Chung-Chang and Sun Chuan-Pang, to whom had been entrusted the defense of the province were reported today to have fled to Tientsin, while the nationalist forces occupied the area south of the Yellow river surrounding Tsinanfu, as well as Tsinanfu itself.

The flight of Generals Chang and Sun seemed to presage the flight of Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the Peking dictator, with the possible complete capture of northern territory by the nationalists under Generals Chiang Kai-Shek and Feng Yu-Hsiang.

Reports from Tsingtao said the nationalists (southerners), now occupy a considerable section of the Shantung railway east of Tsinanfu. Chiang Kai-Shek and Feng participated in besieging Tsinanfu.

British and American missionary organizations here were advised from Tsinanfu there was no danger to missionaries there. The normal missionary population of that city is approximately 200, most of them connected with Shantung Christian University. It is not known how many are there now as British and American consuls had ordered their evacuation two weeks ago.

Despite the presence of Japanese troops on both sides of the line, the southerners cut the Kiaochow-Tsinanfu railroad at Mingshui, capturing several towns, and communications between Tsinanfu and Tsingtao.

Tokio, May 1.—Marshal Chang Tso-Lin, the Peking leader, may be forced to flee before the northward sweep of the nationalist forces.

Reports reaching Tokio today said the Chinese nationalists, headed by General Chiang Kai-Shek and General Feng Yu-Hsiang had captured Tsinanfu.

A further advance by the nationalists, it is believed here, would make Marshal Chang's position in Peking, the northern capital, untenable.

HARRY F. SINCLAIR TELLS HIS STORY ON TEAPOT DOME

SAID HE KNEW NOTHING ABOUT MYSTERIOUS CONTINENTAL TRADING COMPANY

DID GET $757,000 OUT OF DEAL AND TURNED MONEY AND INTEREST BACK

By PAUL R. MALLON

Washington, May 1.—Harry F. Sinclair told his long withheld story to the senate Teapot Dome committee today.

He said he knew nothing about the mysterious Continental Trading Company; that he did get $757,000 out of that strange company's deal and that after his acquittal here ten days ago he turned his whole sum back to his Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company with 3 per cent interest amounting to some $142,000.

Sinclair said he put the $757,000 in Continental Liberty bonds with a lot of other bonds he had and that was why they were the bonds he gave to former Secretary of Interior Fall who leased him Teapot Dome, and to Will Hays, former chairman of the republican national committee who used them to pay off part of the 1920 republican deficit.

He claimed entire innocence of the organization of the Continental Company and described his party in the deal as a mere effort to buy oil.

Thus Sinclair revealed he acted just as did the other three oil men involved in the seven year old deal. Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, testified last week he got $759,500 of the profits and recently turned them back to his company, and the other two, H. M. Blackmer and James E. O'Neill, also returned their one-fourth shares.

Sinclair was sparing of words in his testimony, and once he was informed by Senator Walsh of Montana that thereafter he could not ask his attorney, Martin W. Littleton, who sat beside him, what answers he should make to questions.

Then—the $21.50 and $22.50 suits advertised in the Twin City papers are great buys—and the roads between here and there are packed with cars.

But if you know clothing, you can, with your tongue in your cheek, smile—because GOOD SUITS AT $21.50 AND $22.50 ARE NOT POSSIBLE.

This, or any other store, can buy cheap suits—we could perhaps sell some too—but somehow in this quality system of ours we haven't the heart to take a man's money without giving back its equivalent.

BRAINERD
25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

May 1, 1903

Last night four prominent musicians in the city met and organized a string quartette and from the personnel of the same it can be said that none equally as good has been in existence in Brainerd for some time.

The quartette is composed of Profs. H. Lensrud, Frank Ady, D. W. Whitford, and William Bartsch. They will meet every week for rehearsal and expect to fill many engagements the coming year. The parts taken are two violins, a bass viola and cello.

W. S. Hill has sold his little store and lot on the corner of Ninth and Main streets, to Joseph Drapeau. The latter expects to build a large addition to the store and engage in business on a large scale.

The State Carriers Association was organized in St. Paul during the meeting of the National association, and Letter Carrier John Thompson of this city, was honored by being elected secretary of the state association.

J. R. O'Connell, of this city and Miss Eva May Inez of Stillwater were married at the Catholic church, the Rev. Father Corcoran officiating. The bride is a very popular and talented young lady of Stillwater and has a large circle of friends. The bridegroom is in the train service of the M. & I. and has made his home in the city for some time.

SHARKEY WRITES "FINIS" TO CAREER OF BRIDGEPORT
BRUISER

KNOCKS HIM OUT IN 1 MINUTE.
13 SECONDS OF FIRST ROUND

By FRANK GETTY
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, May 1.—(U.P.)—Jack Sharkey of Boston has catapulted himself back into the front rank of heavy-weight contenders with a terrific two-fisted attack which wrote "finis" to the heavyweight career of Jack Delaney of Bridgeport.

While Baron Von Huenefeld, Captain Koehl, Major Fitzmaurice—the crew of the Bremen—and 15,500 other spectators looked on, Sharkey beat Delaney to the canvas and knocked him out after one minute and thirteen seconds of fighting in the first round last night.

Cutting loose with savage over-hand swings to the jaw at the opening bell, the Bostonian drove the bewildered Bridgeport boxer about the ring. Delaney, ducking and on the run from the first second of the fight, landed just one blow, a right which raised a bruise on Sharkey's collarbone.

With the crowd stirred to instant uproar by the speed of the Lithuanian's attack, Sharkey landed a succession of rights to Delaney's head and jaw and Bridgeport Jack's knees sagged and he clutched for his opponent. As he did so, Sharkey drove a terrific right and left to the body and sent his lighter opponent spinning to the canvas.

After that, it was a massacre, with Delaney gasping and pawing in distress as the Bostonian twice more clubbed him to the canvas. The last time the former light heavy-weight king went down he groveled with his bleeding mouth in the canvas, eyes staring sightlessly, body trembling from the effect of the punches. He was counted out, his face still pressed to the resin, unable to move.

Sharkey, weeping hysterically just as he did that night at Ebbets Field, when he outfought Harry Wills, ran about the ring, excited beyond all control. Delaney, dragged to his corner, shook as though with the ague, unaware of what had happened.

Sharkey returned directly to Boston, and said that he would go immediately into training for another fight, probably with Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, who was present last night and challenged the winner.

Delaney certainly is finally through as a heavyweight. He has now not the shadow of an excuse for fighting outside his own class—the 175-pound division.

HELEN WILLS 'SERIOUSLY ILL', CABLE REPORTS

Berlin, May 1.—(U.P.)—Helen Wills is "seriously ill," she telegraphed the German Tennis federation today.

Miss Wills, who is scheduled to play in Berlin May 6, may have to cancel the match, her telegram said.

Paris, May 1.—(U.P.)—An illness today prevented Miss Helen Wills, American women's tennis champion, from competing in several scheduled matches in Germany.

She was to have gone with her partner, Miss Penelope Anderson, to Berlin shortly for the matches but upon doctor's advice has called off that part of her continental schedule.

She has a cold, probably gained from the variable weather of the past week. It was said she probably would be able to play after a week's rest.

HEENEY STARTS LIGHT TRAINING AT NEW YORK

New York, May 1.—(U.P.)—Back from his vacation in London and Paris, Tom Heeneey, challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, began light training at the St. Nicholas gymnasium today. Weighing 211 pounds, Heeneey plans to gradually work down to 195 or 196 at which weight he expects to meet Gene Tunney in a 15 round bout.

Heeneey is undecided about training outdoors, and may not establish quarters at Atlantic City as first announced. "I never trained outdoors," Heeneey said, "and I don't know that I'll start now. For the time being I'll train at St. Nick's. It was good enough for me when I first came to this country and it's good enough now."

The New Zealander frankly admits that he has no special plan of battle mapped out for Tunney.

ROEBUCK OUTWEIGHED VON
PORAT BY SIXTY-TWO POUNDS

Chicago, May 1.—(U.P.)—Otto Von Porat, hard-hitting Norwegian heavyweight, today appeared a possible candidate for a bout with one of Tex Rickard's picked championship contenders as a result of his first-round knockout last night over Tiny Roebuck, young Haskell Indian giant.

Although Roebuck had not the ring experience of the Norwegian, he outweighed Von Porat, who tipped the scales at 187 3-4, by 62 pounds.

Von Porat in the last two years had added a long string of knockouts to his record. Although he never has entered the contender class, he recently has been regarded as one of the hardest-hitting heavyweights in the field.

Promoter Jim Mullen, before the bout, said that Jack Sharkey's manager had agreed to negotiate for a bout soon between Sharkey and the winner of the Von Porat-Roebuck fight.

SPORTSMATTER

by FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The death of one's grandmother long has been recognized as the formal excuse for attending the ball game. In the case of Percy Lee Jones of Dallas, Texas, the misfortune may turn out to have quite the opposite effect.

When Percy's grandmother passed on, the star southpaw pitcher of the Chicago Cubs inherited $500,000. This occurred a fortnight ago, since when Jones has won several ably pitched ball games for his club. Inheriting a fortune which would buy the ball club for which he toils, the tall twirler seems to be better than ever as a hired hand.

Joe McCarthy was worried when he heard of his crack left-hander's inheritance. The Cubs need Percy, and they don't care whether he is broke or not. If Jones should decide to leave the club and enjoy his wealth at his ease, it might mean the loss of the National League pennant to Chicago. Otherwise, as everyone knows, the Cubs have an excellent chance of grabbing the gonfalon for the first time in exactly a decade.

Inheriting $500,000 is something few of us have a chance to do, and each man's reaction probably would differ from that of his fellows. In the case of Percy Jones, a certain inherent phlegmatism seems to have come to his rescue at the critical moment.

Instead of losing his head, Jones set in to pitch winning ball for Chicago. When he took control of the situation, the Cubs had been tossing away ball games through infield errors. Percy pitched so ably that the opponents weren't able to hit balls hard enough for even a Chicago infielder to fumble. The result was an immediate rise of the Cubs in the percentage column.

It probably is difficult for a man worth half a million to worry about his club's gate receipts, his own salary or a cut in the world series. But Percy Jones seems to be a natural ball player who just can't help going to the hill and trying his best to bring his team home in front.

The Chicago Cubs have an excellent chance of winning the National League pennant this year. Already it has been demonstrated that the Pittsburgh Pirates can be beaten and that the St. Louis Cardinals' pitching staff is not infallible. The New York Giants do not really count at this stage in the race, for all they got out in front at the start. The Cincinnati Reds are through; the Boston Braves have cracked already. The Brooklyn Robins never were anywhere. Why speak of the Phillies? The Cubs are the team to watch.

Now the Cubs, because of their weak infield, need every winning pitcher on their staff. The way Percy Jones has started out indicates he is a winner. There is Charley Root, who, for all he has encountered difficulties this early in the season, can be counted upon for plenty of victories.

"Sheriff" Blake, Art Nehf and Guy Bush are winning pitchers. But the defection of Percy might make all the difference between a pennant and fourth place. For all his half million, he has elected to stick.

Jones won seven games for the Chicago Cubs last season and lost eight. His performances this year have indicated that he will do much better before he retires from the diamond to enjoy the wealth he recently acquired.

New York, May 1.—(U.P.)—Jack Sharkey of Boston has catapulted himself back into the front rank of heavyweight contenders with a terrific two-fisted attack which wrote "finis" to the heavyweight career of Jack Delaney of Bridgeport.

While Baron Von Huenefeld, Captain Koehl, Major Fitzmaurice—the crew of the Bremen—and 15,500 other spectators looked on, Sharkey beat Delaney to the canvas and knocked him out after one minute and thirteen seconds of fighting in the first round last night.

Cutting loose with savage overhand swings to the jaw at the opening bell, the Bostonian drove the bewildered Bridgeport boxer about the ring. Delaney, ducking and on the run from the first second of the fight, landed just one blow, a right which raised a bruise on Sharkey's collarbone.

With the crowd stirred to instant uproar by the speed of the Lithuanian's attack, Sharkey landed a succession of rights to Delaney's head and jaw and Bridgeport Jack's knees sagged and he clutched for his opponent. As he did so, Sharkey drove a terrific right and left to the body and sent his lighter opponent spinning to the canvas.

After that, it was a massacre, with Delaney gasping and pawing in distress as the Bostonian twice more clubbed him to the canvas. The last time the former light heavyweight king went down he groveled with his bleeding mouth in the canvas, eyes staring sightlessly, body trembling from the effect of the punches. He was counted out, his face still pressed to the resin, unable to move.

Sharkey, weeping hysterically just as he did that night at Ebbets Field, when he outfought Harry Wills, ran about the ring, excited beyond all control. Delaney, dragged to his corner, shook as though with the ague, unaware of what had happened.

Sharkey returned directly to Boston, and said that he would go immediately into training for another fight, probably with Johnny Risko, of Cleveland, who was present last night and challenged the winner.

Delaney certainly is finally through as a heavyweight. He has now not the shadow of an excuse for fighting outside his own class—the 176-pound division.

HELEN WILLS 'SERIOUSLY ILL', CABLE REPORTS

Berlin, May 1.—(U.P.)—Helen Wills is "seriously ill," she telegraphed the German Tennis federation today.

Miss Wills, who is scheduled to play in Berlin May 6, may have to cancel the match, her telegram said.

Paris, May 1.—(U.P.)—An illness today prevented Miss Helen Wills, American women's tennis champion, from competing in several scheduled matches in Germany.

She was to have gone with her partner, Miss Penelope Anderson, to Berlin shortly for the matches but upon doctor's advice has called off that part of her continental schedule.

She has a cold, probably gained from the variable weather of the past week. It was said she probably would be able to play after a week's rest.

HEENEY STARTS LIGHT TRAINING AT NEW YORK

New York, May 1.—(U.P.)—Back from his vacation in London and Paris, Tom Heeneey, challenger for the world's heavyweight championship, began light training at the St. Nicholas gymnasium today.

Weighing 211 pounds, Heeneey plans to gradually work down to 195 or 196 at which weight he expects to meet Gene Tunney in a 15 round bout.

Heeneey is undecided about training outdoors, and may not establish quarters at Atlantic City as first announced.

"I never trained outdoors," Heeneey said, "and I don't know that I'll start now. For the time being I'll train at St. Nick's. It was good enough for me when I first came to this country and it's good enough now."

The New Zealander frankly admits that he has no special plan of battle mapped out for Tunney.

The Braves made 19 hits, including four home runs, and beat the Philadelphia Phillies, 13 to 6.

The Pittsburgh Pirates outlasted the Chicago Cubs to win, 8 to 7.

ROEBUCK OUTWEIGHED VON
PORAT BY SIXTY-TWO POUNDS

Chicago, May 1.—(U.P.)—Otto Von Porat, hard-hitting Norwegian heavyweight, today appeared a possible candidate for a bout with one of Tex Rickard's picked championship contenders as a result of his first-round knockout last night over Tiny Roebuck, young Haskell Indian giant.

Although Roebuck had not the ring experience of the Norwegian, he outweighed Von Porat, who tipped the scales at 187 3/4, by 62 pounds.

Von Porat in the last two years had added a long string of knockouts to his record. Although he never has entered the contender class, he recently has been regarded as one of the hardest-hitting heavyweights in the field.

Promoter Jim Mullen, before the bout, said that Jack Sharkey's manager had agreed to negotiate for a bout soon between Sharkey and the winner of the Von Porat-Roebuck fight.

SPORTSMATTER BY FRANK GETTY UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

The death of one's grandmother long has been recognized as the formal excuse for attending the ball game. In the case of Percy Lee Jones of Dallas, Texas, the misfortune may turn out to have quite the opposite effect.

When Percy's grandmother passed on, the star southpaw pitcher of the Chicago Cubs inherited $500,000. This occurred a fortnight ago, since when Jones has won several ably pitched ball games for his club. Inheriting a fortune which would buy the ball club for which he toils, the tall twirler seems to be better than ever as a hired hand.

Joe McCarthy was worried when he heard of his crack left-hander's inheritance. The Cubs need Percy, and they don't care whether he is broke or not. If Jones should decide to leave the club and enjoy his wealth at his ease, it might mean the loss of the National League pennant to Chicago. Otherwise, as everyone knows, the Cubs have an excellent chance of grabbing the gonfalon for the first time in exactly a decade.

Inheriting $500,000 is something few of us have a chance to do, and each man's reaction probably would differ from that of his fellows. In the case of Percy Jones, a certain inherent phlegmatism seems to have come to his rescue at the critical moment.

Instead of losing his head, Jones set in to pitch winning ball for Chicago. When he took control of the situation, the Cubs had been tossing away ball games through infield errors. Percy pitched so ably that the opponents weren't able to hit balls hard enough for even a Chicago infielder to fumble. The result was an immediate rise of the Cubs in the percentage column.

It probably is difficult for a man worth half a million to worry about his club's gate receipts, his own salary or a cut in the world series. But Percy Jones seems to be a natural ball player who just can't help going to the hill and trying his best to bring his team home in front.

The Chicago Cubs have an excellent chance of winning the National League pennant this year. Already it has been demonstrated that the Pittsburgh Pirates can be beaten and that the St. Louis Cardinals' pitching staff is not infallible. The New York Giants do not really count at this stage in the race, for all they got out in front at the start. The Cincinnati Reds are through; the Boston Braves have cracked already. The Brooklyn Robins never were anywhere. Why speak of the Phillies? The Cubs are the team to watch.

Now the Cubs, because of their weak infield, need every winning pitcher on their staff. The way Percy Jones has started out indicates he is a winner. There is Charley Root, who, for all he has encountered difficulties this early in the season, can be counted upon for plenty of victories.

"Sheriff" Blake, Art Nehf and Guy Bush are winning pitchers. But the defection of Percy might make all the difference between a pennant and fourth place. For all his half million, he has elected to stick.

Jones won seven games for the Chicago Cubs last season and lost eight. His performances this year have indicated that he will do much better before he retires from the diamond to enjoy the wealth he recently acquired.

8 PERSONS DROWN IN MONONGAHELA RIVER

Ma, Mont., May 1.—(U.P.)—Eight persons were drowned here last night when they were thrown from a skiff into the flooded Monongahela river. The skiff, which was being used as a ferryboat, was overturned by a tree floating in the flood waters.

That Boy Scouts are desired and given preference over other boys is illustrated by the following unusual offer, the like of which has never before been made.

The American Natural History Museum of New York, the largest of its kind, is developing an African Hall, to show African wild life. For many years it has sponsored expeditions into Central Africa to obtain specimens of animals, paintings of settings made on the spot, and movies of animals in their native habitat. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson are now in Africa to obtain movies. They have been in this kind of work for about 18 years. The picture spectacle "Simba" is the result of 4 years of that work; it takes two hours and 15 minutes to see it in a theatre. It shows the most amazing pictures and movements of lions, elephants, rhinoceros, zebra, etc., ever obtained.

Geo. Putnam, of Putnam's Sons, publishers, New York, will this summer send two boys to Africa as members of this expedition. The boys must not be less than 13½ nor more than 16 years of age, and they must be Scouts. Mr. Putnam will pay all expenses of the two boys. Each candidate must submit a large amount of evidence, which pertains entirely to his past school and scouting records, and details certain natural talents. No last-minute performances have a place in the requirements. What has the Scout done, is demanded. The trip will require about four months. It involves a boat trip to France, a cruise through the Mediterranean sea, Suez Canal, Arabian sea to India. From India the boat goes to Monibassa, British East Africa, which is the destination. Abyssinia is north and Tanganyika is south of B. E. Africa.

STATE-OWNED LAKE FRONT CAMP AND COTTAGE SITES

MORE than 2,000 state-owned lake front camp and cottage sites have been listed for lease to recreation seekers this summer, Ray P. Chase, state auditor and land commissioner, announced to the Associated Press.

This is a new development and attests to the growing interest shown in lake regions of the state. A booklet listing the sites located in 23 counties of Minnesota has been prepared and is available for those who are interested. Last summer, as reported in the Duluth News Tribune, interest in the lake front sites hit a new high mark and it is anticipated that even a greater number will take advantage this year.

Leases are made for a term of 10 years with the right of renewal at an annual rental of $12, payable in advance. The plots have lake frontage of about 125 feet and a depth, where possible, of 250 to 300 feet.

Before leasing the sites specific rules are made clear to the lessee in order that the property may retain its natural beauty, it was announced. Green timber cannot be cut, business cannot be conducted on the premises, such as stores, hotels or shops. Tar paper shacks or other buildings which might be a fire hazard, are forbidden and buildings must be placed at least two rods from the lake front, sale regulations provide.

Taxes on the plot improvements must be paid by the lessee. It also is provided that the land is subject to lease for mineral purposes, a remote possibility, according to Mr. Chase, and the state reserves the right to cancel the leases on three months' notice.

Portions of the shores of the lakes bordering on which the state owned lands have been surveyed into small lots. Among these are Lakes Pokegama, Thistledeew, Leander, Sturgeon, Side, Jeanette, Blackhoof, Snowball and Pleasant. Most of these lie in St. Louis, Crow Wing and Itasca counties. More surveys are to be made from time to time as those already selected have been leased.

Sites not platted can be leased on application to the state auditor, it was announced. The lands leased belong to three state trust funds, the school, university and swamp. On each lake front platted for use of recreation seekers one or more free public sites have been set apart for general use. This was done under laws passed by the 1923 legislature providing that lake front lands be withdrawn from sale or travel, lease and public camping purposes.

In addition to the lands under the jurisdiction of the auditor, the lake front tracts have been arranged for among lands set aside as state forests and placed under the direction of Grover Conzel, state forester. These sites are largely in Lake, Cook and St. Louis counties.

Counties in which there are sites on state lands for lease are: Aitkin, Becker, Beltrami, Cass, Cook, Clearwater, Crow Wing, Dakota, Houston, Hubbard, Itasca, Kanabec, Koochiching, Pine, St. Louis, Sherburne, Stearns, Todd, Washington and Winona.

THE OLDEST DOCTOR BOOK

THE Oxford Press is giving to the world an understandable reproduction of the oldest scientific or medical work in the world, says the Los Angeles Times in a recent editorial.

This is Prof. James Henry Breasted's translation of the Edwin Smith papyrus which was a part of the wonders recovered in explorations in the Nile Valley. The work is done in the hieroglyphics that mark the Egypt of more than 3600 years ago.

The book proves that the doctors in the days of the oldest Pharaohs knew a lot about surgery that has hardly been improved upon in the flight of centuries. They knew that the brain was the center of nerve control and they also understood the variations of the pulse and the circulatory system.

The ancient sawbones who gave this transcription to posterity also knew how to handle a compound fracture of the skull and realized what might be the mental result of such an accident. He used an effective vegetable lint to absorb blood and he had linen bandages with a durable adhesive plaster to use after wounds had been stitched.

He divided diseases into three groups: Those he could cure, those he would treat and those he would not take a chance on. Modern doctors have the same division, but are perhaps less conscientious in denying the cases they cannot help or cure.

This old-timer lived more than 1200 years before Hippocrates, who is held up as the real pioneer in medicine and surgery. But the Egyptians were there first and knew more than the Greeks.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

SUCCESSFUL merchants have found that advertising pays as it brings their messages to their list of possible customers. They realize that advertising is an indispensable part of modern business. The best advertisers put something constructive and interesting in their ads, or even some of their own personality.

John Wanamaker, the merchant prince, was one of the greatest advertisers as well as one of the country's most successful merchants. For many years he followed the practice of putting a signed editorial in a corner of his page ads, thus giving the personal touch. Every business under the sun has interesting features that have great possibilities if only used in advertising.—Spring Valley Tribune.

MAY 1ST DAWNS

MAY 1ST dawned nice and clear with a temperature of 55 degrees above zero at 8 o'clock this morning. However, one cannot tell what the day may bring forth.

Out in the lake country one notices North Long and Round are clear of ice. Roads are drying, birds are singing, grass is cropping out, and it looks like spring, that is, at the time this is being pounded out on the typewriter.

CAN it be that the dawn of reason is breaking in the Democratic party in Minnesota, asks the Anoka Herald. Saturday they drafted Albert Pfander, member of the Republican State Committee, as their candidate for lieutenant-governor. There remains but to abandon free trade and endorse Coolidge to arrive at complete sanity.

TOWNS PEOPLE SEE HOW THEY LOOKED 25 YEARS AGO

Five little girls from Holland clattered along the pavements in clumsy, wooden shoes that were made for soft dirt roads, so the plump damsels were glad when they limped home at the end of the day that they lived in the day of civilized leather. Harold Plaata appeared in the silk hat and swallow tailed suit worn by the rest of the Flaatas in previous years. Mr. Kelly could find enough recruits for the Navy to make a unit from Brainerd alone. Among the pirates, fiercest of men, were Levi Folsom and Dale Sanders, whose fierce mustachios and black patched eyes lived up to the traditions of Captain Kidd. Mexico contributed her fair share of ten gallon straw hats—the widest and deepest being those of John Ellison and Clarence Sundquist. Pierrot and Pierrette in splashy white and red were personified by Donald McNamara and Milford Downie. All the countries of the globe appeared—the costume of the Dalarne was worn by Edith Johnson, a Scotch outfit by Laura McGaffigan, a Turkish one by Lydia Welsh, Japanese and Chinese ladies paraded in trousers and kimono; a tramp so realistic that men about town thought he was the vanguard of the hobo invasion turned out to be Orval Herrington. Many other of his like paraded through town. Old ladies of all ages appeared, but Molly was the only one able to sport a pug of her own hair properly attached.

Skirts of all lengths and vintages appeared—one could hardly believe that they had actually been worn by ladies of Brainerd in the not far distant past.

The consensus of opinion was that with all her faults, the flapper of today wore much more sensible clothes than her predecessors.

HUMOR

Teacher—Willie, do you know what becomes of boys who use bad language when they play marbles?
Willie—Yes, Miss. They grow up and play golf.

An auto tourist was traveling through the great northwest, when he met with a slight accident to his machine. In some way he had mislaid his monkey-wrench, so he stopped at a nearby farmhouse where the following conversation took place between himself and the Swede farmer:
"Now! By brodder he got cattle ranch over dere. My cousin he got sheep ranch further down dis road—but too cold h'ar for monkey ranch."

Cop—Hey there! You can't stop here, you know.
Jim—Can't, eh? You don't know this car.

In a recent assembly Dan arose and said: "We shall now hear a lecture on 'Fools,' by one of the world's greatest." He paused and the audience roared. As soon as the noise subsided he said, "—professors in the country, Prof. B."

Undaunted, Prof. B. arose and said: "I am not as great a fool as Mr. Moran—" He paused and after the applause had ceased he concluded, "—would have you think I am."

Senior Dress Up Day

Senior Dress Up Day came and passed in its usual blaze of splendor. The Seniors according to their custom came bright and early arrayed in costumes ranging all the way from 1810 to 1940.

A number of dear old ladies were noticed among whom was Walter Hautala and a sprinkling of clowns and pirates was also observed.

The Juniors added to the furor with a candy sale the only result of which was a lot of sick stomachs and $28.75.

Cameras were prevalent and the command of "hold it!" was the word of the day. Although the day was a complete success (from every view except studies) and we hope for next year's frivolity as those who have gone before us have hoped and made the most of it when it came.

Benefit Of The Doubt

Maybe they are wrong at times; but they are human and subject to making human mistakes as often as the best of us.

Therefore, let us not razz, in an unsportsman like manner, any referee of any basketball game no matter who he is or how inefficient he is. If he renders a hasty decision, as he is likely to do in a fast game, and your own conclusion fails to coincide with the official's, down your own decision and refrain from razzing him.

Just place yourself in the position of the referee and make your decisions as rapidly as he is forced to do and then decide whether you could have done better for as many times.

All are aware of a feeling of contempt when our opponents razz a floor official on our own floor, yet we forget that we don't create a much better impression by doing that identical thing when supporting our team away from home.

None of us are well enough versed in the refereeing game to find fault.

Of course if you insist on riding an official, ride him when he makes a mistake in favor of the home team. Ride him, good and hard and tell him out and out what you think about it. However, our suggestion is that you be sportsmanlike and not say a word on any occasion.—The Tiger Herald, Marshall, Minn.

The physics class of Glencoe high school went on a hunting expedition to test sound waves by shooting a gun. They found that sound travels 91 feet per second faster than it is supposed to. Congratulations on the new world's record.

WE SEEM TO BE GETTING ALONG NICELY

When we moved into the new (?) high school Monday before last, the first sight that greeted our eyes was the beautiful wall paper which adorned the walls of the halls and rooms. William Marshall fell asleep and blamed it all on this same innocent paper. He said that it looked so much like that he had in his bedroom.

Among the novelties were the vaults which were in almost every room. In one class four husky lads got a hand and foothold on one of them and managed to jerk it open. After expecting to see a lot of antiquies an old rusty papers stored away in the archives you may imagine their surprise upon seeing one electric light burning inside of it.

The first days were spent in locating rooms and trying to get up and down the much too narrow stairs. The first problem gradually was worked out by itself and the second was solved by Miss Tornstrom, who issued a set of traffic rules which were printed on a sheet of cardboard in capital letters and set up at the foot of the stairs.

PICKLES TO BE

GIVEN MAY 14TH

The Operetta "Pickles" or "In Old Vienna," is to be presented to the public at the Park Theater Monday evening, May 14. The play, a musical comedy in three acts, now enjoying great popularity in amateur theatricals, is being presented by the combined glee clubs and the orchestra. For some time it has been difficult to hold rehearsals on account of the grip epidemic, but cast and choruses are now moving swiftly to perfection.

The plot hinges about a gypsy girl, Iona, the search in Vienna for the lost daughter of a wealthy English woman, Lady Vivian Delancy, the advertising of Peter Piper Pickles by Jones who is employed by Jonas Pennington, the producer of the pleasing products, and Arthur Crefont, a poor artist who is very interested in Pennington's daughter, June. The schemes of Jigo and Captain Kinski concerning the return of the lost daughter are finally exposed and everyone lives happily ever after.

The costumes of the choruses of Burgers, Tourists, Viennese maidens, Gypsies and carnival revelers, composed of over seventy people, are gorgeous and form a magnificent background for the action, but the magnificence of Captain Kinski's regimentals overshadows any attempts at supremacy in this line. If you would know what the well dressed police captain of Vienna wears, go and see for yourself this captain of captains. There are also two wonderful dances by Iona which cannot be appreciated in words, and vocal solos by the cast, which unites with the choruses in the grand finale of each act. The cast follows:

Hans Martr, proprietor of the Wurtzelpracter Inn—
Louisa, a waitress after Kinski's own heart—Mildred Prentice.
Captain Kinski, chief of Vienna's secret service—Milford Downie.

Bumski and Rumski, Kinski's faithful sleuths—Dale Sanders and Joe Greener.
J. Jennison Jones, an advertising expert—William McClenahan.

Jigo, a Hungarian gypsy chief—David Weber.
Iona, a gypsy girl—Ellen Berglund.

Arthur Crefont, a young American artist—Roland Jenkins.
June Pennington, an American heiress—Thelma Jones.

Jonas H. Pennington, proprietor of "Peter Piper Pickles"—Donald McNamara.

Lady Vivian Delancy, a wealthy English woman—Mardelle Winter.

The tickets are on sale and may be obtained from anyone in the operetta.

Have you ordered your '28 Annual? It's only a dollar.

NOTICE

All people who have any part in the operetta must watch the bulletin board and report to practices punctually or they will be asked to drop out. Miss Rickard

The Semper Paratus Club met on Thursday night for a short meeting in Miss Taylor's room. A committee was appointed to take care of the annual Semper Paratus banquet and it was requested that all members pay their dues before the banquet to enable the committee to work more easily.

An impromptu laboratory session was held last Wednesday in Miss Laipple's fourth period class when a purple fusch made its appearance on a tree outside, the class flocking to the windows while Miss Laipple explained color and habits of the bird.

Who, What and Where

Miss Erstad broke her pearls during the fourth period Bookkeeping class. Then there was a great pearl hunt about the room!

Monday, the Seniors were given University examinations. The first one began at 10 o'clock; the other at 2 o'clock.

Miss Tornstrom called a short meeting for all the girls interested in taking up Normal Training in Brainerd, next year. All girls were obliged to sign up before Monday noon.

Report cards were given out Friday. Monday morning the cards were passed in and the students were not privileged to pass to their advisors for advice as they had done formerly.

Each student had to sign a period card again last week since the old ones were destroyed by fire.

Senior Dress Up Day was a howling success! We must say there were some very clever costumes!

The sick list is diminishing in numbers. Many have returned after several days of illness.

Mr. Kasch showed great interest in Senior Dress Up Day. During his social science class he had each one tell of the life he represented. Joe Greener represented a bootlegger, Orval Herrington a bum, Don McNamara and Milford Downie circus clowns; Dale Sanders, Laura Racine and Hugh Patterson pirates and the others representing various other lives ranging from Goldust Twins to old women of the early eighties.

Mrs. Mills selected the girls who are to coach the grade school girls for track-meet. They are:

Lowell—Anna Wahlstrom and Wilma Helgeson.
Lincoln—Lorraine Palmer and Roberta Crawford.

Whittier—Margaret Jackson.
Harrison—Hilda Dyvik.

Every Senior girl or rather many of them had their cameras to school with them Dress Up Day and all the Seniors were kept posing for them.

Irene Molstad did look clever with her sign: "We women want to vote." She means it too—ask any member of Mr. Kasch's II period social science class and they'll tell you!

Have you paid for yours? What? Your '28 Annual. It's a wow!

DEAN JOHNSTON CONDUCTS EXAMS HERE; 20 OUTSIDE STUDENTS ATTENDED

The University is sending out five groups of men this week to give examinations for competition for the scholarships given each year. Dean Johnston himself conducted the examination at Brainerd. Each district has a center at which the examinations take place. Brainerd happened to be the center for this district. From here, Mr. Johnston is going to Bemidji, then to Crookston, and finally to Moorhead.

Twenty students, outside of B. H. S. students, took the examination here. They were from Wadena, Sebeka, Crosby-Ironton, Deerwood, Little Falls and Menasha. All were competing for the $100 scholarships, two of which were won last year by Marjorie Cunningham and Raymond Anderson from Brainerd.

This examination is composed of completion tests, spelling and literature tests. There were also vocabulary tests in which some humorous mistakes were made. Words were given, and the pupils were supposed to underline the correct synonym of four or five given.

The following words and synonyms were given by some bright students:

Kine—sympathetic.
Abdomen—pleural cavity.
Placid—stomach.
Tithe—slimness.
Pinnacle—kind of wood.
Botany—human life.
Inflammation—eugenically.
Censor—official examiner of deeds.
Seraph—a graceful young woman.
Welke—walk, flush, grow pale, redder, meet.

At some time within the next few weeks a "barn yard golf" tournament will be held in the back yard of the present high school. This is for both sexes; all those interested are to report to Mr. Kasch or Mrs. Mills at once. There may, finally, be mixed doubles, for the uninitiated, who do not know what that term implies. STATE-OWNED LAKE FRONT CAMP AND COTTAGE SITES

MORE than 2,000 state-owned lake front camp and cottage sites have been listed for lease to recreation seekers this summer, Ray P. Chase, state auditor and land commissioner, announced to the Associated Press.

This is a new development and attests to the growing interest shown in lake regions of the state. A booklet listing the sites located in 23 counties of Minnesota has been prepared and is available for those who are interested. Last summer, as reported in the Duluth News Tribune, interest in the lake front sites hit a new high mark and it is anticipated that even a greater number will take advantage this year.

Leases are made for a term of 10 years with the right of renewal at an annual rental of $12, payable in advance. The plots have lake frontage of about 125 feet and a depth, where possible, of 250 to 300 feet.

Before leasing the sites specific rules are made clear to the lessee in order that the property may retain its natural beauty, it was announced. Green timber cannot be cut, business cannot be conducted on the premises, such as stores, hotels or shops. Tar paper shacks or other buildings which might be a fire hazard, are forbidden and buildings must be placed at least two rods from the lake front, sale regulations provide.

Taxes on the plot improvements must be paid by the lessee. It also is provided that the land is subject to lease for mineral purposes, a remote possibility, according to Mr. Chase, and the state reserves the right to cancel the leases on three months' notice.

Portions of the shores of the lakes bordering on which the state owned lands have been surveyed into small lots. Among these are Lakes Pokegama, Thistledown, Leander, Sturgeon, Side, Jeanette, Blackhoof, Snowball and Pleasant. Most of these lie in St. Louis, Crow Wing and Itasca counties. More surveys are to be made from time to time as those already selected have been leased.

Sites not platted can be leased on application to the state auditor, it was announced. The lands leased belong to three state trust funds, the school, university and swamp. On each lake front platted for use of recreation seekers one or more free public sites have been set apart for general use. This was done under laws passed by the 1923 legislature providing that lake front lands be withdrawn from sale or travel, lease and public camping purposes.

In addition to the lands under the jurisdiction of the auditor, the lake front tracts have been arranged for among lands set aside as state forests and placed under the direction of Grover Conzet, state forester. These sites are largely in Lake, Cook and St. Louis counties.

Counties in which there are sites on state lands for lease are: Aitkin, Becker, Beltrami, Cass, Cook, Clearwater, Crow Wing, Dakota, Houston, Hubbard, Itasca, Kanabec, Koochiching, Pine, St. Louis, Sherburne, Stearns, Todd, Washington and Winona.

THE OLDEST DOCTOR BOOK

THE Oxford Press is giving to the world an understandable reproduction of the oldest scientific or medical work in the world, says the Los Angeles Times in a recent editorial.

This is Prof. James Henry Breasted's translation of the Edwin Smith papyrus which was a part of the wonders recovered in explorations in the Nile Valley. The work is done in the hieroglyphics that mark the Egypt of more than 3600 years ago.

The book proves that the doctors in the days of the oldest Pharaohs knew a lot about surgery that has hardly been improved upon in the flight of centuries. They knew that the brain was the center of nerve control and they also understood the variations of the pulse and the circulatory system.

The ancient sawbones who gave this transcription to posterity also knew how to handle a compound fracture of the skull and realized what might be the mental result of such an accident. He used an effective vegetable lint to absorb blood and he had linen bandages with a durable adhesive plaster to use after wounds had been stitched.

He divided diseases into three groups: Those he could cure, those he would treat and those he would not take a chance on. Modern doctors have the same division, but are perhaps less conscientious in denying the cases they cannot help or cure.

This old-timer lived more than 1200 years before Hippocrates, who is held up as the real pioneer in medicine and surgery. But the Egyptians were there first and knew more than the Greeks.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

SUCCESSFUL merchants have found that advertising pays as it brings their messages to their list of possible customers. They realize that advertising is an indispensable part of modern business. The best advertisers put something constructive and interesting in their ads, or even some of their own personality.

John Wanamaker, the merchant prince, was one of the greatest advertisers as well as one of the country's most successful merchants. For many years he followed the practice of putting a signed editorial in a corner of his page ads, thus giving the personal touch. Every business under the sun has interesting features that have great possibilities if only used in advertising.—Spring Valley Tribune.

MAY 1ST DAWNS

MAY 1ST dawned nice and clear with a temperature of 55 degrees above zero at 8 o'clock this morning. However, one cannot tell what the day may bring forth.

Out in the lake country one notices North Long and Round are clear of ice. Roads are drying, birds are singing, grass is cropping out, and it looks like spring, that is, at the time this is being pounded out on the typewriter.

CAN it be that the dawn of reason is breaking in the Democratic party in Minnesota, asks the Anoka Herald. Saturday they drafted Albert Pfander, member of the Republican State Committee, as their candidate for lieutenant governor. There remains but to abandon free trade and endorse Coolidge to arrive at complete sanity.

BRAINERD HIGH SCHOOL, TUESDAY, MAY 1, 1928

NUMBER 31

SENIORS PLAY

MAKE BELIEVE

TOWNS PEOPLE SEE HOW THEY LOOKED 25 YEARS AGO

Five little girls from Holland clattered along the pavements in clumsy, wooden shoes that were made for soft dirt roads, so the plump damsels were glad when they limped home at the end of the day that they lived in the day of civilization. Harold Flaata appeared in the silk hat and swallow tailed suit worn by the rest of the Flaatas in previous years. Mr. Kelly could find enough recruits for the Navy to make a unit from Brainerd alone. Among the pirates, fiercest of men, were Levi Folsom and Dale Sanders, whose fierce moustachios and black patched eyes lived up to the traditions of Captain Kidd. Mexico contributed her fair share of ten gallon straw hats—the widest and deepest being those of John Ellison and Clarence Sundquist. Pierrot and Pierrette in splashy white and red were personified by Donald McNamara and Milford Downie. All the countries of the globe appeared—the costume of the Dalarne was worn by Edith Johnson, a Scotch outfit by Laura McGaffigan, a Turkish one by Lydia Welsh. Japanese and Chinese ladies paraded in trousers and kimono; a tramp so realistic that men about town thought he was the vanguard of the hobo invasion turned out to be Orval Herington. Many other of his ilk paraded through town. Old ladies of all ages appeared, but Molly was the only one able to sport a pug of her own hair properly attached.

Skirts of all lengths and vintages appeared—one could hardly believe that they had actually been worn by ladies of Brainerd in the not far distant past.

The consensus of opinion was that with all her faults the flapper of today were much more sensible clothes than her predecessors.

Buy a '28 annual and show your grandchildren what you did when you were young, then you can die in peace.

HUMOR

Teacher—Willie, do you know what becomes of boys who use bad language when they play marbles?

Willie—Yes, Miss. They grow up and play golf.

An auto tourist was traveling through the great northwest, when he met with a slight accident to his machine. In some way he had mislaid his monkey-wrench, so he stopped at a nearby farmhouse where the following conversation took place between himself and the Swede farmer:

"Now! By brodder he got cattle ranch over dere. My cousin he got sheep ranch furder down dis road—but too cold 'ar for monkey ranch."

Cop—Hey there! You can't stop here, you know.

Jim—Can't, eh? You don't know this car.

In a recent assembly Dan arose and said: "We shall now hear a lecture on 'Fools,' by one of the world's greatest." He paused and the audience roared. As soon as the noise subsided he said, "—professors in the country, Prof. B."

Undaunted, Prof. B. arose and said: "I am not as great a fool as Mr. Moran—" He paused and after the applause had ceased he concluded, "—would have you think I am."

Senior Dress Up Day

Senior Dress Up Day came and passed in its usual blaze of splendor. The Seniors according to their custom came bright and early arrayed in costumes ranging all the way from 1810 to 1940.

A number of dear old ladies were noticed among whom was Walter Hantala and a sprinkling of clowns and pirates was also observed.

The Juniors added to the furor with a candy sale the only result of which was a lot of sick stomachs and $28.75.

Cameras were prevalent and the command of "hold it!" was the word of the day. Although the day was a complete success (from every view except studies) and we hope for next year's frivolity as these who have gone before us have hoped and made the most of it when it came.

EXCHANGE

Benefit Of The Doubt
—Maybe they are wrong at times; but they are human and subject to making human mistakes as often as the best of us.

Therefore, let us not razz, in an unsportsman like manner, any referee of any basketball game no matter who he is or how inefficient he is. If he renders a hasty decision, as he is likely to do in a fast game, and your own conclusion fails to coincide with the official's, down your own decision and refrain from razzing him.

Just place yourself in the position of the referee and make your decisions as rapidly as he is forced to do and then decide whether you could have done better for as many times.

All are aware of a feeling of contempt when our opponents razz a floor official on our own floor, yet we forget that we don't create a much better impression by doing that identical thing when supporting our team away from home.

None of us are well enough versed in the refereeing game to find fault.

Of course if you insist on riding an official, ride him when he makes a mistake in favor of the home team. Ride him good and hard and tell him out and out what you think about it. However, our suggestion is that you be sportsmanlike and not say a word on any occasion.—The Tiger Herald, Marshall, Minn.

The physics class of Glencoe high school went on a hunting expedition to test sound waves by shooting a gun. They found that sound travels 91 feet per second faster than it is supposed to. Congratulations on the new world's record.

The Seniors of the Canby high school are to present "The Charm School," as their class play. We hope it will be as much a success as it was for our Seniors 2 years ago.

The Gustavian—in answer to a request for a contribution for this year's annual the Gustavian recently received an autographed photograph and a letter from Crown Prince Gustav Adolph of Sweden.

In the Marshall high school paper, "The Tiger Herald," gossiping was described in an editorial as being "an affliction of the tongue due to a period of under use followed by a slight warming of the ear drums by rumor."

Earl: Did you hear any of the new "Letter Laugh Songs?"

MADE AUDITOR FOR CECIL B. DE MILLE

Successful Climb to Success Seen in Life of Elmer A. Tambert

Handles on an Average of $200,000 Per Week in Movie Production

From railroad operator in Deerwood to auditor of the Cecil B. DeMille Pictures Incorporation and handling on an average of $200,000 per week, tells the story of the rise to success in the life of Elmer A. Tambert, formerly of Deerwood and well known in Brainerd.

The Culver City (Cal.) Citizen of recent date carries in part the following story on the duties of Mr. Tambert:

"This expenditure is represented by thousands of individual documents that must be properly audited, checked, classified, and recorded in their respective accounts. Unlike other commercial businesses where this process can be accomplished by an established routine, motion picture accounting requires quick results. The management must know immediately just what the directors, supervisor or production department is spending on a picture. Failure to get this information quickly and accurately would result in disaster. To turn a director loose and say, 'go ahead, the sky is the limit' would only result in a highly artistic picture and no profits."

"Mr. Tambert is a home loving man, with a sweet wife who has been a pal to him for 12 years. They have two children. A happy, ideal family."

Mrs. Tambert is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Delborg who operate a dairy farm near the pavement between Deerwood and Crosby.

COMPLETING CAST FOR HOME PLAY

"Womanless Wedding" to Have Not One Single Female Character

PRESENTED AT U. C. T. HALL

Two Performances, May 9 and 10 by Harrison P. T. A.

A wedding without a single female character, although there is to be a bride, is the plot of an amateur play, "Womanless Wedding," with a cast of 80 men, to be staged at the U. C. T. hall Wednesday and Thursday, May 9 and 10, under the auspices of the Harrison P. T. A. and advance indications are that the entertainment will be largely attended. Miss Esther Dee Ladwig, representing the Symphonie Levie company of Bradenton, Ky., arrived in the city on Sunday to direct the production.

Much interest is being taken in the affair and the public is looking forward to the production with anticipation of much fun. Places where this show has been staged report it to be the greatest scream ever and it promises to be a high-light in local theatricals.

Miss Ladwig reports notable success to date in securing the cast which is to start intensive rehearsals. Eighty local men will be taught to masquerade in feminine guise, casting their sombre business suits aside to assume the apparel of matrons, vampires and fashion plates for the play when they represent a galaxy of such notables as Mary Pickford, Mrs. Coolidge, Galli Cucci and others.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1925, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

An all-night card game is drawing to a close in the old Sweet Springs Inn, Preston, one of the players, astonished his companions by offering as his final stake a miniature of Betsy Patterson. While he is boasting that she herself was the donor a stranger leaps through the window, challenging the remark. A fight ensues in which the skilled swordsman, Preston, is wounded. His opponent goes on his way with the miniature. In the woods he surprises the lovely Betsy weeping in a brook. He demands to know what she is doing there.

rolled them into a little ball. "Really," she turned on him scornfully, "if I thought such behavior scandalous, and the pupil were mine—instead of preaching like an old maid, I'd resign."

But La Vert's face clouded. "Why did you not tell me you were taking a walk—with these stupid people?"

"Why should I tell you? Furthermore, you certainly were not about. And as for the others—they found the matter out for themselves—and they came with me."

"The goddess tossed her flaming head."

"What?"

"I did not speak!" La Vert turned his back.

"O, you story-teller, you did!" Betsy smiled and smoothed down the frilled bodice and draped her light chenille shawl about her shoulders.

"I did not," La Vert contradicted sullenly.

"You did—you swore! I don't know what it means, but I know it was a swear because it gave me a perfect thrill."

"If you had taken me with you this morning—or waited for me," La Vert declared heatedly, "the whole complexion of this affair might be changed."

"I know it! And it's going to be much worse, I promise you," Betsy nodded her head vigorously. "That's why I didn't. I prefer the complexion of it as it is. Besides, one can't invite one's tutor with one's friends."

"Pardon!" La Vert turned away.

"O, I don't mean that I wish you were not a tutor," Betsy veered quickly, realizing that she had wounded La Vert's feelings and wishing to make up for the hurt that she had not intended. But in another minute she was biting her tongue for having said the words, for the tutor faced her, his eyes bright with happiness.

"Do you?" he questioned eagerly.

"But you must remember, I am a man as well as a tutor." He came and stood beside her, gazing into the deep wells of her eyes that turned violet in their seriousness.

"Ah, if you were a real man," Betsy shook her head slowly, "you would be in France, in the army—under the greatest general in the world." She stared off into the woods dreamily, not seeing the faint smile that flitted across the face of her companion. "Just think of your Napoleon," she murmured.

"His power, his strength—the ambition which made of a poor Lieutenant the first Consul of France."

"But love—is not that greater than ambition?" the tutor questioned pleadingly, catching one of the fair hands that toyed with the fringes of the shawl. "O, Betty, say that it is."

"Miss Betsy, if you please!" Betsy tossed her red head and drew herself up imperiously, pulling her hand away quickly.

"Miss Betsy—a thousand pardons," La Vert bowed humbly, but still with that faintly amused smile.

"Sacred!" Betsy's foot had come into contact with a sharp stone.

"Miss Betsy!" La Vert looked up in horrified amazement.

"Ah! Nice French you are teaching me. I thought it was a swear," she gurgled. "Don't you think you ought to be ashamed of yourself? Do you think that anyone who uses such dreadful language has any right to correct a lady just because she goes for a walk? Now, apologize at once, sir. Promise me you'll never scold or preach or be angry or say any dreadful cross things to me again."

"I promise," La Vert swore faithfully, smiling.

"Then—I shall hate you," Betsy tossed her head provokingly.

"What!" the tutor exclaimed, puzzled.

"Yes! You have no more backbone than a feather in the wind," Betsy smiled disdainfully.

"So!" La Vert turned away haughtily.

"That's right," Betsy taunted him. "Now, get into a temper. Oh, do something perfectly horrid, and I'll allow you to call me Betty. You are ever so much funnier when you're angry."

"Well," he faced about once more, sullenly, "it is enough to drive anybody mad, to think of you flying over the country without me—with those other—idiots—dangling after you—stockings!" He turned and stared back towards the hotel, stamping in his anger the soft moss underneath.

"Now, don't you want to call me Betty?" The chameleon-like witch intrigued gently.

"Betty!" The tutor started towards her. "Betty!" But his words were interrupted by a series of halloos.

"There—they're calling me," Betsy pushed him back quickly and patted her hair into place. "I must go. They'll be here for me. Quick—run—they mustn't see you with me." She reached hastily for her shoes and stockings and her hat.

"Betsy!"

more stilted. "Thank fortune, I have never been fool enough to fall in love."

"O!" Betsy smiled and then quickly assumed a serious expression as the man faced about.

"Well, there are some men so well satisfied that they congratulate themselves even on their own limitations." The proud, patrician head turned a pure Grecian profile and looked very haughty. Indeed, the sun, warming now to the tolls of the day, came breaking through and caught the gleaming beauty of rich, auburn hair and with its own alchemy turned the headlights to gold.

"So!" La Vert stopped pacing and stood before this woodland goddess who looked as though she had descended from Mount Olympus just to spend one day at Sweet Springs.

"Yes," Betsy remarked with some little display of temper, "the vanity of all men is simply unspeakable—really quite past my understanding." She broke off a leaf from an overhanging branch and twisted it idly in her tapering, white fingers.

"It is evidently not the only matter that is past the understanding of Mademoiselle Patterson," La Vert exclaimed sharply.

"O! That was very rude." The goddess flung the scarred leaf from her sharply.

"You do not seem to see the danger—" La Vert began.

"Please don't show it to me then," Betsy exclaimed, laughing.

"To point out a danger to a woman is to add another chain to the temptation." Now she laughed clearly, with a rich treble that set the birds to answering and the hills to throwing back reply. "Why don't you talk?" she hurried on, not waiting for an answer. "Surely, you're not doing yourself the honor to be annoyed with me?"

"Haven't I caused?" La Vert spoke quickly.

"Certainly not! Besides, you are taking an unwarrantable liberty."

"I am supposed to be your instructor."

"O! Only my French tutor—" And, as such, it is my duty to see that you do not—"

BEST TONIC AFTER ILLNESS

FATHER JOHN'S MEDICINE

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

An all-night card game is drawing to a close in the old Sweet Springs Inn. Preston, one of the players, astonishes his companions by offering as his final stake a miniature of Betsy Patterson. While he is boasting that she herself was the donor a stranger leaps through the window, challenging the remark. A fight ensues in which the skilled swordsman, Preston, is wounded. His opponent goes on his way with the miniature. In the woods he surprises the lovely Betsy reading in a book. He demands to know what she is doing there.

"I came for a very early morning walk—with cousin Mary, and Sir Henry, and Mr. Blake and Mr. Calhoun. They're over there, some place." Betsy waved a white arm in the general direction of the path. "They dared me to go walking—and I did. She dropped the big hat and shoes beside her and sat down on a rock and curled the bare feet up under her skirt. "So, you have been walking with Sir Henry, and Monsieur Calhoun and Monsieur Blake."

"Yes, it's too bad you couldn't come with us—but then."

"No, I thank you—not with them. Do not place me with those idiots." He turned away haughtily, his meticulous English making his words sound even more stilted. "Thank fortune, I have never been fool enough to fall in love."

"O!" Betsy smiled and then quickly assumed a serious expression as the man faced about.

"Well, there are some men so well satisfied that they congratulate themselves even on their own limitations." The proud, patrician head turned a pure Grecian profile and looked very haughty, indeed.

The sun, warming now to the tolls of the day, came breaking through and caught the gleaming beauty of rich, auburn hair and with its own alchemy turned the headlights to gold.

"So!" La Vert stopped pacing and stood before this woodland goddess who looked as though she had descended from Mount Olympus just to spend one day at Sweet Springs.

"Yes," Betsy remarked with some little display of temper, "the vanity of all men is simply unspeakable—really quite past my understanding." She broke off a leaf from an overhanging branch and twisted it idly in her tapering, white fingers.

"It is evidently not the only matter that is in the understanding of Mademoiselle Patterson," La Vert exclaimed sharply.

"O! That was very rude," the goddess flung the scarred leaf from her sharply.

"You do not seem to see the danger—" La Vert began.

"Please don't show it to me then," Betsy exclaimed, laughing. "To point out a danger to a woman is to add another charm to the temptation." Now she laughed clearly, with a rich treble that set the birds to answering and the hills to throwing back reply.

"Why don't you talk?" she hurried on, not waiting for an answer. "Surely, you're not doing yourself the honor to be annoyed with me?"

"Haven't I caused?" La Vert spoke quickly.

"Certainly not! Besides, you are taking an unwarrantable liberty."

"I am supposed to be your instructor."

"O! Only my French tutor—" "And, as such, it is my duty to see that you do not—"

"Ouch!" Betsy jumped down from her perch and made a little grimace as her feet struck the ground. "Go for walks," she took up the sentence where La Vert had left off, "before breakfast, with other gentlemen." She pulled her stockings from his pockets and rolled them into a little ball. "Really," she turned on him scornfully, "if I thought such behavior scandalous, and the pupil were mine—instead of preaching like an old maid, I'd resign."

But La Vert's face clouded. "Why did you not tell me you were taking a walk—with these stupid people?"

"Why should I tell you? Furthermore, you certainly were not about. And as for the others—they found the matter out for themselves—and they came with me."

The goddess tossed her flaming head.

"Sacred!"

"What?"

"I did not speak!" La Vert turned his back.

"O, you story-teller, you did!" Betsy smiled and smoothed down the frilled bodice and draped her light chenille shawl about her shoulders.

"I did not," La Vert contradicted sullenly.

"You did—you swore! I don't know what it means, but I know it was a swear because it gave me a perfect thrill."

"If you had taken me with you this morning—or waited for me," La Vert declared heatedly, "the whole complexion of this affair might be changed."

"I know it! And it's going to be much worse, I promise you," Betsy nodded her head vigorously. "That's why I didn't. I prefer the complexion of it as it is. Besides, one can't invite one's tutor with one's friends."

"Pardon!" La Vert turned away. "O, I don't mean that I wish you were not a tutor," Betsy veered quickly, realizing that she had wounded La Vert's feelings and wishing to make up for the hurt that she had not intended. But in another minute she was biting her tongue for having said the words, for the tutor faced her, his eyes bright with happiness.

"Do you?" he questioned eagerly. "But you must remember, I am a man as well as a tutor." He came and stood beside her, gazing into the deep wells of her eyes that turned violet in their seriousness.

"Ah, if you were a real man," Betsy shook her head slowly, "you would be in France, in the army—under the greatest general in the world." She stared off into the woods dreamily, not seeing the faint smile that flitted across the face of her companion. "Just think of your Napoleon," she murmured. "His power, his strength—the ambition which made of a poor Lieutenant the first Consul of France."

"But love—is not that greater than ambition?" the tutor questioned pleadingly, catching one of the fair hands that toyed with the fringes of the shawl. "O, Betty, say that it is."

"Miss Betsy, if you please!" Betsy tossed her head and drew herself up imperiously, pulling her hand away quickly.

"Miss Betsy—a thousand pardons," La Vert bowed humbly, but still with that faintly amused smile.

"Sacred!" Betsy's foot had come into contact with a sharp stone.

"Miss Patterson!" La Vert looked up in horrified amazement.

"Ah! Nice French you are teaching me. I thought it was a swear," she giggled. "Don't you think you ought to be ashamed of yourself? Do you think that anyone who uses such dreadful language has any right to correct a lady just because she goes for a walk? Now, apologize at once, sir. Forgive me you'll never scold or preach or be angry or say any dreadful cross things to me again."

"I promise," La Vert swore faithfully, smiling.

"Then—I shall hate you," Betsy tossed her head provokingly.

"What!" the tutor exclaimed, puzzled.

"Yes! You have no more backbone than a feather in the wind," Betsy sniffed disdainfully.

"So!" La Vert turned away haughtily.

"That's right," Betsy taunted him. "Now, get into a temper. Oh, do something perfectly horrid, and I'll allow you to call me Betty. You are ever so much funnier when you're angry."

"Well," he faced about once more, sullenly, "it is enough to drive anybody mad, to think of you flying over the country without me—with those other—idiots—dangling after you—stockings!" He turned and stared back towards the hotel, stamping in his anger the soft moss underneath.

"Now, don't you want to call me Betty?" The chameleon-like witch intrigued gently.

"Betty!" The tutor started towards her. "Betty!" But his words were interrupted by a series of hiccups.

"There—they're calling me," Betsy pushed him back quickly and patted her hair into place. "I must go. They'll be here for me. Quick—run—they mustn't see you with me." She reached hastily for her shoes and stockings and her hat.

BEST TONIC AFTER ILLNESS

OVER 70 YEARS OF SUCCESS AS A SPRING TONIC

Constipation!

How to Keep

Bowels Regular

Dr. W. B. Caldwell, of Monticello, Ill., a practicing physician for 47 years, it seemed cruel that so many constipated men, women, children and particularly old folks, had to be kept constantly "stirred up" and half sick by taking cathartic pills, tablets, salts, calomel and nasty oils.

While he knew that constipation was the cause of nearly all headaches, biliousness, indigestion and stomach misery, he did not believe that a sickening "purge" or "physic" was necessary.

In Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he discovered a laxative which helps to establish natural bowel "regularity" even for those chronically constipated. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin not only causes a gentle, easy bowel movement but, best of all, it never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless, and so pleasant to take that even a cross feverish child gladly takes it.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine or write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, for a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE and just see for yourself.

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN

Little Falls, Minn., May 1.—(UP)—Little Falls, the home town of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, will go on the air May 21 over radio station WCCO in a commemorative program of the famous flier's arrival in Paris last year.

The program will be divided into separate units in which a resident of Little Falls will talk about Lindbergh or his boyhood home. An old resident of the town will speak on the late Congressman Lindbergh, the colonel's father, while another will give a talk on Lindbergh as his oldest friends knew him.

Other talks will be features on the program.
